

FROM: Conna Bral, Assistant Provost, Education Professions

RE: American College of Education / Learners Edge Graduate Courses

DATE: November 14, 2021

The purpose of this letter is to verify that the courses offered by Learner's Edge in partnership with American College of Education (ACE) are designed specifically for graduate-level continuing education purposes to help educators stay current in their field and meet continuing licensure needs.

ACE will review each Learners Edge completer's work for transfer credit and will award credit, as appropriate. Learners Edge courses are transcribed as continuing education graduate-level credit at American College of Education and are continuously evaluated by our education department. Effective November 14, 2021, Learners Edge course completers who meet American College of Education program admission requirements can transfer up to nine credits toward the focus of study or elective areas in the following M.Ed. and Ed.D. programs, M.Ed. in Advanced Studies, M.Ed. in Curriculum and Instruction, M.Ed. in Educational Technology, M.Ed. in Elementary Education, M.Ed. in Integrated Curriculum, M.Ed. in Special Education, Ed.D. in Curriculum & Instruction, Ed.D. in Leadership, Ed.D. in Instructional Technology, and Ed.D. in Secondary Language. Additionally, (6) credits of LE education can be applied to the M.Ed. in Teacher Leadership degree program. Enrollment in individual courses for graduate credit does not constitute enrollment in a graduate degree program.

Course completion is documented with a letter grade and posted in semester continuing graduate-level credits on an official college transcript. American College of Education is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission.

Thank you for your interest in taking graduate-level continuing education courses from American College of Education.

